

Historically Underserved Farmer Peer-to-Peer Learning Cohort

Join a Peer-to-Peer Farming Group to Achieve Your Farming and Sustainability Goals

What is the Peer-to-Peer Learning Cohort?

The peer-to-peer historically underserved farmer cohort is a group of farmers who come together to share knowledge, experience, and resources with each other in order to improve their farming practices and business skills. It is free and will be hosted by a regional coordinator from Sand County Foundation.

What are the benefits of the Peer-to-Peer Learning Cohort?

The goal of the peer-to-peer historically underserved farmer cohort is to help farmers improve their productivity, profitability, and sustainability through shared learning and collaboration. Participants have the opportunity to engage in discussions with experts and peer leaders, and learn about financial and technical assistance programs offered by the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

- Take part in a Wiregrass region cohort of farmers to learn from each other in a collaborative and supportive environment.
- Engage in quarterly cohort workshops and regional farm tours.
- Participate in conservation-focused webinars.
- Receive guidance on the Farm Service Agency (FSA) and NRCS application process, programs, and opportunities.

Serving historically underserved farmers and ranchers (Beginning, Socially Disadvantaged, Veterans, and Limited Resource) in Alabama's Wiregrass region: Barbour, Bullock, Butler, Coffee, Covington, Crenshaw, Dale, Geneva, Henry, Houston, Macon, Montgomery, Pike, and Russell counties.

Sand County Foundation is a national nonprofit conservation organization that inspires and empowers farmers, ranchers, and other landowners to ethically care for water, soil, and wildlife.
